Why Choose An Apartment Hotel?

“The convenience and comfort of hotels is fine for short-term visits.

The problem arises when visits are for longer periods – perhaps a new executive relocating, project teams or even our Field Staff who are visiting for a week or so each month. Hotels seem to ‘temporary’ to be of comfort – not to mention expensive, yet renting a place involves the inflexibility of leases”

This is just one of the many complaints which we hear from companies who are trying to find accommodation for periods of longer than a week or two. In the past, many companies could find no other solution than hotels, but nowadays the advantages of serviced apartments has been realised – namely offering flexibility, independence and value for money.

With more and more business travellers becoming tired of the hustle and bustle and impersonal service of hotels, it’s no surprise that Serviced Apartments have become a sought after alternative. Providing a “hassle free” option, Serviced Apartments effectively act as a real “home away from home” offering the flexibility, independence and freedom to do as you please.

Experience has shown that many personnel are thrilled to be offered an apartment – enabling them to relax and settle into their new working environment.

The Advantages of Serviced Apartments ...

The extra room, flexibility and independence that Serviced Apartments offer are undoubtedly their main attraction.

Add to this the financial savings that are gained, and it is clear to see why individuals and companies alike are choosing Serviced Apartments for their accommodation requirements.

In response to this increased demand, Oakfield Court has been developed to offer exclusive serviced apartments, ensuring a level of personal service and professionalism which is required by the business executive.
